

FIG. 1—ROYAL NAVAL ENGINEERING COLLEGE, KEYHAM

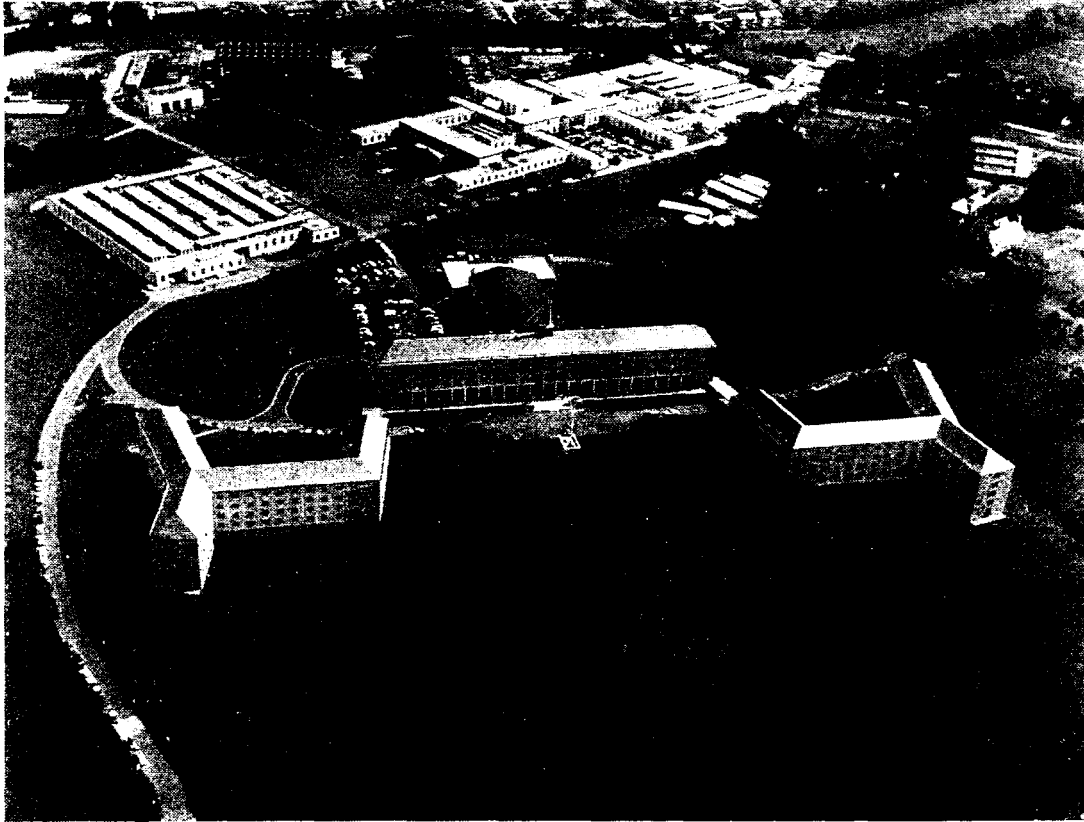

FIG. 2—ROYAL NAVAL ENGINEERING COLLEGE, MANADON

ROYAL NAVAL ENGINEERING COLLEGE CENTENARY

Keyham College opened its doors to the first engineer students on 1st July 1880, and Centenary Celebrations are therefore being planned. Among the many activities being considered is the production of a history of the College to be undertaken by a member of the staff, and research into this project has already begun.

A search is being made for suitable material, particularly that relevant to the period between the Wars. Any photographs or documents (which will, of course, be returned) or reminiscences of Keyham or Manadon will be very welcome.

Readers who have anything to offer are asked to send their contributions to:

The Centenary Liaison Officer,
Royal Naval Engineering College,
Manadon,
Plymouth. PL5 3AQ