

THE LATE PROFESSOR A. C. ELLIOTT.

Prof. A. C. ELLIOTT, D.Sc. (Edin.)

We have received with very great regret intimation of the death of Professor A. C. Elliott, D.Sc. (Edinburgh University). This took place on April 21st, at Porthcawl, Glamorgan, his favourite recuperating place, where he was resting at the time. Prof. Elliott had been resident for many years at Cardiff as Professor of Engineering at the South Wales University College. Our associations with him at intervals during the past twenty-three years have been of a pleasant character and have left sweet memories of himself and Mrs. Elliott, to whom we extend deep sympathy in the severe trial which she has been called upon to undergo. Born at Glasgow about the year 1861, A. C. Elliott was educated at Glasgow and Edinburgh, attending the Universities of both cities, and obtaining the degree of D.Sc. at that of Edinburgh. While at Glasgow he was student under Sir Wm. Thomson, and gave promise then of high attainments, obtaining distinction in the examinations. He entered upon practical work in the engineering department of the Glasgow and South-Western Railway, and was afterwards assistant to the engineer-in-chief. A few years later he was associated with Sir Wm. Thomson and Prof. Fleeming Jenkin as assistant in connection with their consulting works. Previous to being appointed to the chair of engineering at Cardiff, he was assistant Professor of Engineering at Edinburgh University. He was a member of the Institution of Civil Engineers, President of the South Wales Institute of Engineers, and a Vice-president of the Institute of Marine Engineers. He was elected a member of the Institute of Marine Engineers in 1890, a few months after his appointment to the University College, Cardiff, where his association with marine engineers led him to take a warm interest in the proceedings from an educational point of view. He also contributed to the Transactions and otherwise devoted himself to advancing the aims of the promoters of the Institute, and when Lord Kelvin (Sir William Thomson) was elected President, his former pupil, Prof. Elliott, was President of the Bristol Channel centre of the Institute, and, at the annual dinner, responded on behalf of "the country members."

“Titanic” Engineering Staff Memorial.
